Sankofa Website

The Sankofa website principally serves three functions:

1. Information about the philosophy of Sankofa, its operational guidelines, those involved, examples of its teaching materials and news of existing pilot projects.
2. Password protected access to a continuously updated repository of teaching materials/lesson plans. This repository will have controlled (monitored) access for several reasons:
    a. The teaching materials are shared with the understanding that end-users respect their ownership. These lesson ideas are freely available with the understanding that Sankofa is acknowledged as the owner and that users take the opportunity to share evaluation and feedback of the material, so contributing to ongoing improvement.
    b. Participants in the Sankofa system are strongly encouraged and expected to share any teaching materials they create.
    c. Knowing where the materials are used will significantly contribute to an understanding of their effectiveness.
3. Password protected access to a portal for uploading activity reports and feedback from current pilot projects. This repository will have controlled (monitored) access for several reasons:
    a. To encourage submission and sharing of this information, it is important for participants to be assured that their correspondence is secure and only available, in the first instance to a select, listed group of people.
    b. By definition, this material is not for public access without monitoring. These reports will be used to generate best practices, lessons learned and feedback to community and teachers.

Current Pages

Introduction: Mostly current, update narrative to better represent where we are now, update participation and reduce front size for Community Survey Link

Curriculum: OK?

About Us: Update - remove Furaha, Noma, Sreelakshmi for the moment; add folks from current list (you will need to solicit photo and bio)

Pilot Projects: Need to add tribal village in India (will add name later), Honda (Tanzania), new one from XXX (coming soon) and hopefully new ones elsewhere - will hook you up with Remi in Nigeria for help with narrative

Contact: Looks ok?

New Pages/Links

Breaking News: add page to website for this?

Teaching Materials Repository: Active link for controlled access to existing teaching materials

Teaching Materials Upload: Active link for controlled upload of new teaching materials

Sankofa Reporting: Active link for controlled upload of pilot project reports/feedback on current teaching materials

Sankofa Documentation: Controlled access to internal Sankofa documents—meeting recordings/minutes, documents circulated, emails etc

I think this is everything we talked about? Yes/no